Title VI and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (United States legislation) provides protection for people against discrimination based on race, color, national origin, sex, and religion. The regulations are enforced by the Office for Equity and Diversity (Equity and Diversity Office) and Ombuds Office (Ombuds Office). The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) is an independent federal agency that enforces Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which applies to employers, labor unions, employment agencies, and state and local governments with 15 or more employees (including employment discrimination based on sexual orientation).

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (United States legislation) protects students from sex discrimination in educational programs and activities that receive Federal financial assistance. The regulations are enforced by the Office for Equity and Diversity (Equity and Diversity Office) and Ombuds Office (Ombuds Office). The regulations also apply to students who are employees of those institutions, which reinforces the principle of equal opportunity in education.

Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (United States legislation) and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (United States legislation) protect students with disabilities from discrimination in educational programs and activities that receive Federal financial assistance. The regulations are enforced by the Office for Equity and Diversity (Equity and Diversity Office) and Ombuds Office (Ombuds Office). The regulations also apply to students who are employees of those institutions, which reinforces the principle of equal opportunity in education.

Age Discrimination Act of 1975 (United States legislation) protects students from age discrimination in educational programs and activities that receive Federal financial assistance. The regulations are enforced by the Office for Equity and Diversity (Equity and Diversity Office) and Ombuds Office (Ombuds Office). The regulations also apply to students who are employees of those institutions, which reinforces the principle of equal opportunity in education.
Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (Title IX) is a federal civil rights law that prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex in education programs and activities that receive federal funding. Title IX applies to all students, faculty, and staff of the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

The Title IX Coordinator is responsible for ensuring compliance with Title IX. The Title IX Coordinator's duties include:

- Investigating allegations of sexual harassment and sexual violence
- Coordinating with external agencies to ensure appropriate response to allegations
- Providing education and training to students, faculty, and staff
- Maintaining records of incidents
- Reporting statistics to the Department of Education
- Coordinating with the Title IX Office of the University of Wisconsin-Madison

The Title IX Coordinator is supported by a team of Title IX Coordinators and Investigators.

Title IX Coordinators:

- Chancellor, Provost, Vice Chancellors, Vice Provosts
- Deans and Directors
- University Health Services
- Office of Human Resources
- Office of Workforce Relations
- Office for Equity and Diversity
- University Housing Managers
- Fellows
- Resident Managers
- University Complaint Investigators
- Assistant Vice President

The Title IX Coordinator is responsible for ensuring that the University of Wisconsin-Madison is compliant with Title IX regulations and that students, faculty, and staff are aware of their rights and responsibilities under Title IX.

For more information, please visit the Title IX Office of the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

UW-Madison’s Sexual Harassment and Sexual Violence Policy

This policy provides guidance for preventing sexual harassment and sexual violence in academic and work environments. It is based on Title IX of the Education Amendments Act of 1972, which prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex in any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.

The policy applies to all students, faculty, and staff. It outlines procedures for addressing complaints of sexual harassment and sexual violence, including how to file a complaint, conduct an investigation, and provide support to those affected.

For more information, please refer to the full policy document available on the UW-Madison website.
